

Chronostasis: Reverie

Macro game design document

Author: Uriel “Rosary” Gomez Madriz

Date: 3/2/2025

Introduction

The “Reveria” project is a metroidvania started on 10/22/2024 in Psychological Dark Fantasy set in “The Crystal Kingdom”, a world where war is part of anyone's daily life along with its implications.

This is a project designed for one year in which the aim is to develop a video game of medium duration (between 6 to 12 hours) of High difficulty with elements of platform games similar to the “B-Side” of the video game “Celeste” and the difficulty of combats of titles such as “Dead cells” or “Dark souls”.

This project is based on a great focus on its narrative and art along with mechanics which have a degree of simplicity and a technical foundation based on “Easy to understand and difficult to master.”

This is planned to be developed in Unity version 2021.3.25F1 Its , the music produced with Musescore 4.0.3 and the Art section with Krita.

Use: This is not a version with the content Stable of the project, if not with the concepts and ideas one has for the same

This document is a Remaster of a shorter and less detailed version of the same

History

Prologue:

The story is set in the “Crystal Kingdom”, a world created after the destruction of the always mysterious “Gates of Riches and Jewels”, a series of conductors and controllers of magic.

After the destruction of one of these, a strange and eccentric man decides to try to dominate said force and with this begins to create that kingdom whose crystals seek to be perfect and inevitable after the loss of an important person for him, leaving behind the world that gave him power.

Start of the game.

At the beginning of the game you control Eudora Ariamis and Arkhalis Inkdeath, a prodigious Arch Mage along with the most important Blood Mage in history.

Both enter the crystal kingdom in order to explore it because everything that was known about said place was partly correct and in search of the origin of the great “Crystal Kingdom” they decide to enter it at its expense.

They first enter a cave, where they encounter the “Perfects of the Crystal Kingdom” creatures and how much of the time they are controlled by red threads as if they lacked consciousness.

Motivations of protagonists

Both protagonists have similar motivations:

Arkhalis seeks to understand the origin of the doors with such fine decorations, one has already been seen and as the game progresses for a “Broken”.

Ariamis wants to finish understanding what he studied for years by seeing a crystal kingdom full of false images which lies to anyone who seeks to decipher it.

They are only looking for answers, but in those answers they discover what really happened to the world they know and why the place through which they were able to see the kingdom, known as “The Black Desert” is nothing more than the consequences of the selfishness of a man wanting a loved one back and opposing a natural order.

About the Arches of magic.

The arcs of magic are a series of natural rules imposed by it which are more flexible than they seem, each arc has its own “Heir”, a person embodies his philosophy in flesh and blood.

The arcs in summary are as follows:

The reminiscence:

This is better called the arc of the “Past” closely linked to pain and conflict and always hand in hand with the cold and the stars.

Their magicians are people capable of using blood magic, this being the pain of the past, the cold being the sadness of the world and the stars being the beauty of the world.

The infinite:

An arc of cycles which seeks magicians capable of understanding and seeing the world under a strong feeling of sadness and nostalgia.

This is the one with the most wizards to its name and usually the one with the weakest wizards, its heir usually must live a cycle of pain until the next one arrives.

The sacrilege:

Every law must have something that seeks to break it, sacrilege is defined as the ultimate crime against everything natural.

They are magicians obsessed with everything that can change and shape reality at will and even begin the crime of playing “god.”

Their heirs usually commit the ultimate sin against the world itself, creating functional life forms, so they carry the pain and weight of being criminals in the eyes of something that cares nothing.

The reconstruction:

In magic, everyone is equal and pays the same prices, the same truths and often even knows the same thing.

Of all the arcs, this is exactly the one that seeks to break this paradigm, Scientists and technicians with a deep feeling of need to know more and know more in order to rebuild, improve and above all make the world "Perfect".

It is the branch in which there are fewer and fewer magicians and those who belong to it are more noticeable, seeking every method to achieve more knowledge, an incarnation of the phrase "The end justifies the means."

In their lives, these magicians blindly pursue the great cycle of pain and losing someone just because of enormous appreciation.

The crystal kingdom itself is a consequence of this arc.

the world

They are not just any judges or executioners, they are people trying to protect the balance of the arches, avenge the world and the pain caused.

A type of "Justiciar" who does the dirty work of a selfish few called the "Arcos".

They are people tormented by their past and forced to serve this task, they do not carry it with joy but with the pride of knowing they do the right thing for everyone, they are usually closely related to "Reminiscence" by seeing them as beings who, lacking innocence, still try to serve something of "Value".

Although they are the branch with the fewest followers, they usually have the most faithful to stay alone with the world.

Reason (Also called the “Apocrypha”)

In every system there must always be something hidden, something that seeks more in increasingly secret and unique ways.

The reason is an Arc of sects which seeks to have an absolute order and knowledge that should be hidden underground, often called “Apocrypha” for hiding and giving merit to others of their own discoveries.

Although close to “The Reconstruction” they seek to attack said arch at all costs and their heirs rarely stand up for their own order.

The in-permanence

Everything in the world always changes and moves according to the hands of a direct and rotating world which never stops.

An arc with the most versatile and unique magicians ever seen, I feel the youngest of these and the most gifted with pure knowledge.

They seek to change, improve, reform and perfect the world without the obsession of reconstruction, stop the cycle of infinity and save Reminiscence from its own sin.

Extremely close to Sacrilege and being the only bow that does not attack others without a compelling reason.

The kingdom of perfection and crystal

Sometimes known as the glitch of magic itself, the “Crystal Kingdom” is an unstoppable and immovable force which seeks absolute perfection controlled by a mortal.

This same one is the consequence of someone playing with his benefit of being an heir, born from the very obsession of reconstruction and his pain, he is considered a parasite of magic.

His magician is the father of the arch himself and the one who directs the crystal kingdom to the letter.

Just a man broken by his ambitions and obsessions.

Characters (Story)

About Arkhalis Inkdeath, “Reminiscence in Life”

Arkhalis follows the philosophical concepts of something “Reminiscent” or attached to the past. She is a mage focused on the Arc of the same name which is responsible for blood, star and ice magic.

A deeply emotional approach to pain, trauma, looking back and the sadness of the present.

She is presented as a cheerful and somewhat playful mage tormented by the people she swore to rule which no longer exists along with the militias who now torment her for not being able to protect the sacred city of magic and blood, Ytze.

About Eudora Ariamis, “Infinity in Life”

During a now dead era, Aurora Ariamis was a brilliant and outstanding mage who mastered and understood all the arcs of magic.

Each arch has its purpose along with a quote that represents it, in this specific case it is “The Infinite.”

An eternal cycle of magic, memories, memories, experiences and finally death which eats its magician from the inside, who is tied to knowing the future but not being able to change or alter it.

During his life, Ariamis was considered a rarity because, like every great magician, he was mutated by magic, but thanks to the very nature of said force he managed to avoid much of it except one of his arms which remains mutated and uncontrollable with the advantage that he can both mutate and remove the mutation in other parts of the body.

Despite what it may seem, the current Ariamis is nothing more than a body revived from the dead, although alive she no longer has an escape from the depths of the abyss.

Sobre Sarin Brokenglast

The great Techno-Arcane Scientist and Engineer figuring out how to travel to the crystal realm is also the greatest perfectionist narcissist ever lived.

A brilliant inventor who broke each and every rule she could, one after another in order to decipher knowledge and, unconsciously; Inheriting the reconstruction, being the first in said arc, she did not have to lose someone to understand said selfishness.

Although selfish, she is not evil and rarely seeks to destroy, she only seeks knowledge.

About Enos

Enos was for a long time the heir of Reconstruction, with an enormous love for his infinite with whom he had a daughter.

After the death of his "Infinite". He himself deciphered one of the passages of reason and destroyed the "Gate of Platinum and Copper", releasing a part of its magical influence and thereby beginning to form something that he believes is "perfect" and finally founding the crystal kingdom.

A hurt and hurt person that everyone tried to reason with him but it was impossible, not even Sarin could.

Extremely modest but obsessed with challenging the natural order itself.

Above the platinum and copper door.

The gates of “Jewels” and “Riches” are the things designated by the bows for magic to work stably, but these are completely conscious and even very affiliated with a bow.

In this case, Reason maintained a deep secrecy about itself and even after its “Destruction” it remains conscious.

One more layer in the secret of the Arches.

About Apotheosis Moebius Black, the inventor of sacrilege.

The magician who gave her life for her bow until she managed to inherit the sacrilege, better known as “the heiress who did not kill her creation.”

He created the Moebius swarm, a series of mechanical spiders that slowly become biological and, what a machine to its inventor; They call her mother or even... GOD.

She is a brilliant scientist and mother of the Techno-arcana along with the adoptive aunt of Arkhalis Inkdeath.

A magician with no talent for magic but an enormous gift for engineering which demonstrated why “sacrilege” does not concern magicians.

About Irelia Eos Everegarden.

The mage and dictator of the great EldenHeaven who created the bloodiest war in history, adopted Arkhalis Inkdeath and her sister is the sister of Apotheosis Moebius Black.

A magician of “Requiem” and “Axiom”, better known as the language of the doors of “Jewels and Riches”.

Although brilliant, he made the mistake of getting into a war because of the biggest misunderstanding there is.

He was only protecting his dead sister's legacy.

About Nefertari

Nefertari is the legitimate daughter of Enos, one of the few people who managed to live at the base of the crystal kingdom and continue telling the story of “Fafnir reveria”, the predecessor world of the black desert.

She is known to be far from human, with enormous kindness and great appreciation for the Moebius swarm.

About Keltanas Brokenglant.

The heiress that Sarín left lying in a cell for 17 years, an Artifice.

These are sometimes called the “Artificial Layoffs,” beings with the gifts of the layoffs but the failure of the layoffs.

This was the “Despies Killer”, a lady with an impressive talent for death, sometimes becoming the most prodigal in history along with the heir of the world.

A person who hated his job every day of his life and who, despite everything, was the first to enter the crystal kingdom.

About the midlegame (History)

During the Mid-Game the idea is to further explore the crystal kingdom from within, see as a replica the memories, memories and suffering of beings other than themselves by playing with everything possible, even sending creatures outside to prevent it from being destroyed.

From here on, the idea is to talk more about the secondary missions and the mid-game axes along with the end-game routes.

At this point, showing mechanical cities, factories of crystalline creatures, Statues of Enos and even symbols of the occult Apocrypha is essential to tell the story that has been formulated at this point along with oppressive environments which seek to give discomfort to touch the focus on psychological terror.

A brilliant lady in the void and she really came to understand it and use it along with mastering any weapon she touched, including gunblades.

The big cities gave their names to the chains (old Era)

During the old era there were cities, now the crystal kingdom replies as punishment to the two ladies who decide to enter their kingdom by force, praying the cities they lost when they reached the great black desert.

The first is the capital of magic and blood, Ytze

A city set in medieval China with a strong focus on peace, prosperity of research, blood magic and understanding of the old era.

A peaceful nation that prefers to prosper despite being the quintessential reminiscent city and birthplace of Arkhalis Inkdeath.

The city of lights, EldenHeaven.

The great cradle of innovation and knowledge, built on top of the ruins of the great Magnolia, birthplace of the Eos family and even Eudora Ariamis herself.

In this city the academies of magic and militia were founded, together with which the techno-arcane core and the brilliant mind of Morgana Moebius Black were born. Better known as Apotheosis Moebius Black.

A city at war and prosperous.

His fall into rivers of blood showed that the city of innovation has an end

Igdralius Ygdrasill, the city ruled by trade.

The Ygdrasill governments had assassin houses dedicated to protecting the political order of the great city commerce made their main good.

Kings, assassins, magicians, inventors.

If he produces wealth here he was ready to work, Sarín hid here all his life, born in the region of Oconi, Igdralus.

Weapons capable of destroying the crystal kingdom were created by accident and this place was stolen, all thanks to a single person, Sarín; He dedicated his life to improving and protecting everything with secret societies, at the end of the day that city full of weapons, technology and sales was the cradle of reason.

Agartha, the city that banned magic.

Some city had to oppose the command of magic.

This is the birthplace of both Ireliia and Apotheosis, both grew up as nobility, the first adopted and the second as an eldest daughter who learned engineering and magic, Ireliia being the mage who learned engineering and the other way around for her sister.

A land taught magic with logic and from which, years later, Sarín would borrow his ideas to create the Science of magic that we call “Axioms of parallel forces” and finally “The aleph theorem”.

Due to their beliefs they quickly innovated in things of magic by accident, being ahead of their time and trapped in a medieval era.

After the banishment of both sisters, Ireliia dedicated herself to magic and understanding the Requiem, while Apotheosis promoted her theories of magic until creating the “Techno-arcana” that years later would start the bloodiest war in history.

The kingdom of replicas:

The Crystal Kingdom, desperate to protect its order, recreated the four great cities of the old world and turned them into its factories, robbing them of purpose and distorting memories of them, making even the stories told have their own degree of lies.

This in order to destroy the two ladies they quickly approached the center of everything but, Moebius ready as she alone arrived at the kingdom alone and exclusively to blow the replicas into pieces, leaving the memory unrecognizable.

Much of the replicas have what each protagonist believes about the place, so the kingdom's plan failed by distorting EldenHeaven between the beautiful and the fanatical in the eyes of the two people who experienced its fall and its existence.

Each city had a replica of the memories of the ancient dead cities which has the crystal fragments of the absolute penance each one suffered along with the remains of ancient pages describing the stories of the cities.

The master races.

They are called “Master Races” to all those born from Humans with the so-called “Contract to the Divine Sacrilegious” which takes away something vital from them and replaces it with a pure magical core which takes the function of that organ and catalyst of the Arc that has given them the contract.

There are also versions artificially created or touched by a page of the contract which adapt parts of what those joining the contract gain.

Some of these became extinct long before the arrival of Arkhalis and Ariamis in the crystal kingdom.

These are:

The Despia (“Dispossessed”)

They are a race whose life depends completely on magic and tend to be magicians of a fairly average level along with having features and characteristics of an animal.

During their birth, magic takes their hearts and offers them the deal of a favor in exchange for life.

They are rarely completely wild and tend to represent an animal, the two most common cases being Irelia, with the goat, and Ariamis, with the fox.

The animal parts may be more visible or less visible, in early editions of Irelia her fur was used as part of the decoration of her clothing.

These have a version which does not have the debt, only the magic which is known as “Despia de Orculia” or “Orculianos” which are extinct.

The other variant of the Despia is less common, they are called “Perfect Despias” and are those capable of paying their debt with magic, only one is known to have paid it and become a “Prefect”, Arkhalis Inkdeath.

The ghosts

Humans are naturally incapable of performing magic efficiently or even without the aid of an external tool produced by other races or Techno Arcane technologies.

They are a race which was discovered at the end of the “Ruthless Wars” which is still in force and is able to sustain itself by being able to do basic magic, usually being blue-collar labor due to its ability to facilitate constructions or simple tasks.

Although it may not seem like it, there are some in this species who have the ability to create and store memories with ice and the vast majority have a huge connection with the stars, which is why they are great friends of the “Reminiscent”.

The only specimen that achieved something in the black desert was Nefertari, being called at the time "The Ghost of Reveria."

The Empties

The black desert is often called simply “The Void” due to the lack of sun it has had for almost 1,400 years before the Reveria events, leaving a black earth that burns a lot or cools a lot.

This is also known as the “Reverse Climate Effect” which was discovered by a sentient void creature.

Not all of them are conscious, only some who have a deep grudge against the crystal kingdom which after a time began to attack them.

They are very diverse creatures, from sand-breaking worms to fly-like insects, these represent the ancient reveria fauna now converted into predators looking for food.

Because of this, it is recognized that Ariamis waged a war against the most sentient on record, Devorix, who dies shortly before entering the crystal realm.

Crystallized

The crystallized are the most complex race artificially created by the crystal kingdom, they are beings with or without free will considered experiments of the kingdom to create its perfection.

It is known that there is a nomadic tribe that sells and helps anyone who enters the kingdom in order to end Enos's life.

Although it may sound strange, they are usually controlled by threads and some are not visible to each other, such as the "Crystal Carpenters" who carve buildings and are only visible to things outside the kingdom.

The most extravagant thing about these creatures is that the nomadic tribes of the kingdom will always tell you the same reason for attacking the kingdom or hiding from it.

"He is not god... he is worse"

Mobius spiders

I believe Apotheosis Moebius black spiders are probably the most technologically advanced race that exists. They developed an enormous cognitive level along with an enormous resistance to temperature and an even greater strength to defend themselves from whatever is put in their face.

These are divided into types and even have complex hierarchies, their greatest exponent being Apotheosis itself, this being a name given to it by the spiders themselves.

In normal situations they are peaceful, letting their matriarchs modify other spiders and breed new ones by modifying and perfecting them based on errors and taking care of those with design errors.

The Spartans and Ytsians are born as the defense force of the hive.

The workers and spies as workers for construction and information collection.

The last one is known as "The Continental", a mobile spider hive capable of housing millions of spiders in itself and safely transporting people, dismissals and even empties, of these there are only two and they are approximately the size of the United States together with Canada and Russia.

These are extremely respected by all Arcs because they are a life created from sacrilege so they do not follow many natural rules, starting as mechanical and evolving into biological beings.

They are considered the most brilliant invention in history.

These are the ones that, on the group's first visit, decide to fight the crystal kingdom, they are sent as spies in their smallest versions, leaving reddish cobwebs, a symbol of their deep closeness to Arkhalis.

These are also those who constantly collaborate with Sarín, giving him information and using it to obtain better technologies in exchange for knowledge.

They are fascinating beings to look at who have their own vision of the world and their own civilization, motivated by the promise of Apotheosis.

“Someday they will live in a world like the one I was born in.”

Over the black desert

For a time a story was told in the black desert of Nefertari's mouth:

"Once upon a time, before tears were pure, before magic existed, before we mortal beings suffered from eternal sin, there was a world for us, one without weapons or misfortunes... we called it "Fafnir Revery" but one day magic came, back then we called it Aleph... with it came a door of platinum and copper but someone managed to break it, that world is now what you call The Black Desert"

This story also tells the strangest side of the black desert, if you search you find the ruins of this civilization and there is a point where the "Empty" creatures are more present, which protect the center, only allowing a woman to be seen, Nefertari, in addition to protecting what remains of Fafnir reveria behind the domains of Devorix.

This world is the one that Ariamis once said on the air:

“I promise to recover my home, what the wind took away, and give what the spiders expect for their lives. There is no future for me.”

Fafnir Reveria Ruins and the “End Game” (Story)

Fafnir Reveria is one of the final zones designed for the game, showing the reality of the crystal kingdom and opening the doors to three great events, each with its own implications, the first of all being the most complicated.

Sarin will give the player a task the first time he sees her when playing, to search for an invention lost in time itself which he swears to detect with his machines, the scarlet spear.

A spear that in the old era was used together with the price of six souls and the suffering of Keltanas Brokenglast, daughter of Sarin to wipe out a single army with one shot.

After recovering it, the player will attack the crystal kingdom itself and will be able to see more about the arches.

The second is, since Fafnir would reveria see the base of the crystal kingdom to see the results of Enos' life and talk to him, try to reason with a madman.

This culminates with the suicide of Ireliia along with his wife due to the weight of her actions as a dictator along with the resignation of many to fight with a broken man, including the Moebius spiders.

If the player instead goes straight to the core, they will see an exact recreation of ytze and the Gold and Chrome Gate, the version of the Platinum and Copper Gate that Arkhalis has seen for a long time.

At the end in which the arches are discovered, Fafnir reveria becomes a land without magic but fertile and normal.

In the second, everyone lives with the weight of their actions

In the third there is only Ariamis to go around the world.

There is no canonical ending.

Use: This is a summary of the story which does not have everything that is intended, just a part to understand a part of what the story is about.

A more complete but still unfinished version can be seen here:

<https://docs.google.com/document/d/1PHpOVfUd393tcgxYseZ1Uf3uzXHC7tvK-taziO3aT3A/edit?tab=t.0#heading=h.u7f9gs9qcx25>

Mechanics

The mechanics are divided into two parts, both their Lore and their mechanical functionality in addition to the fact that they work within a specific dynamic.

The idea is that both protagonists have their own systems and bases for everything along with firm structures, being, in practice, two different ways of playing.

Both protagonists are designed according to their arc, representing a part of themselves in the process, being:

Arkhalis: An extremely violent, slower playstyle with more strength and a touch more melee damage.

Using his blood magic for short moments.

World Coherence Note: In the crystal kingdom they do not use their power because they could kill themselves, the magic in the place is too unstable.

Eudora Ariamis: A style focused on distance, which can be slower or faster along with looking for distance and tempo when fighting, using simple spells which do not destabilize the environment.

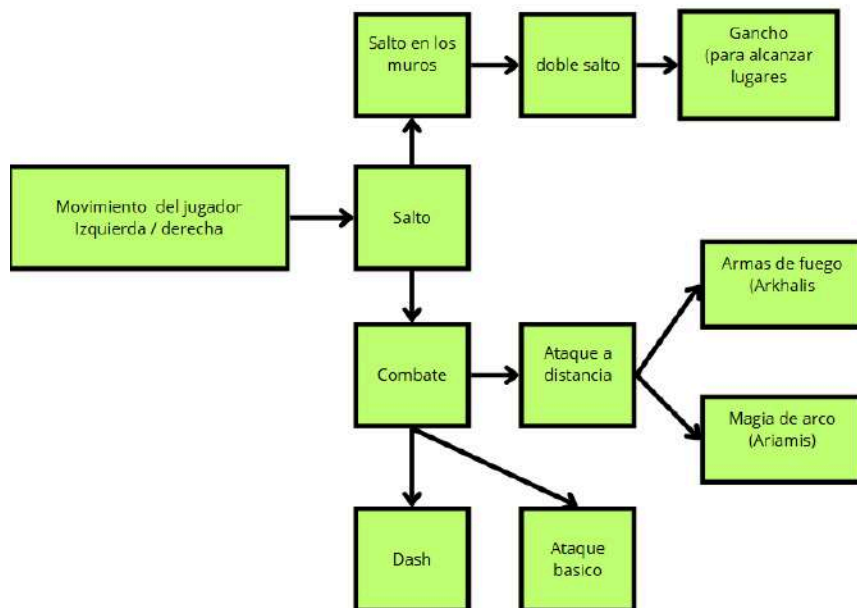

She is also the one who learns the spells of the crystal realm which follow her logic.

For technical reasons I will divide the mechanical axis into three parts, the first known as “Basics” and that of both characters.

Basics

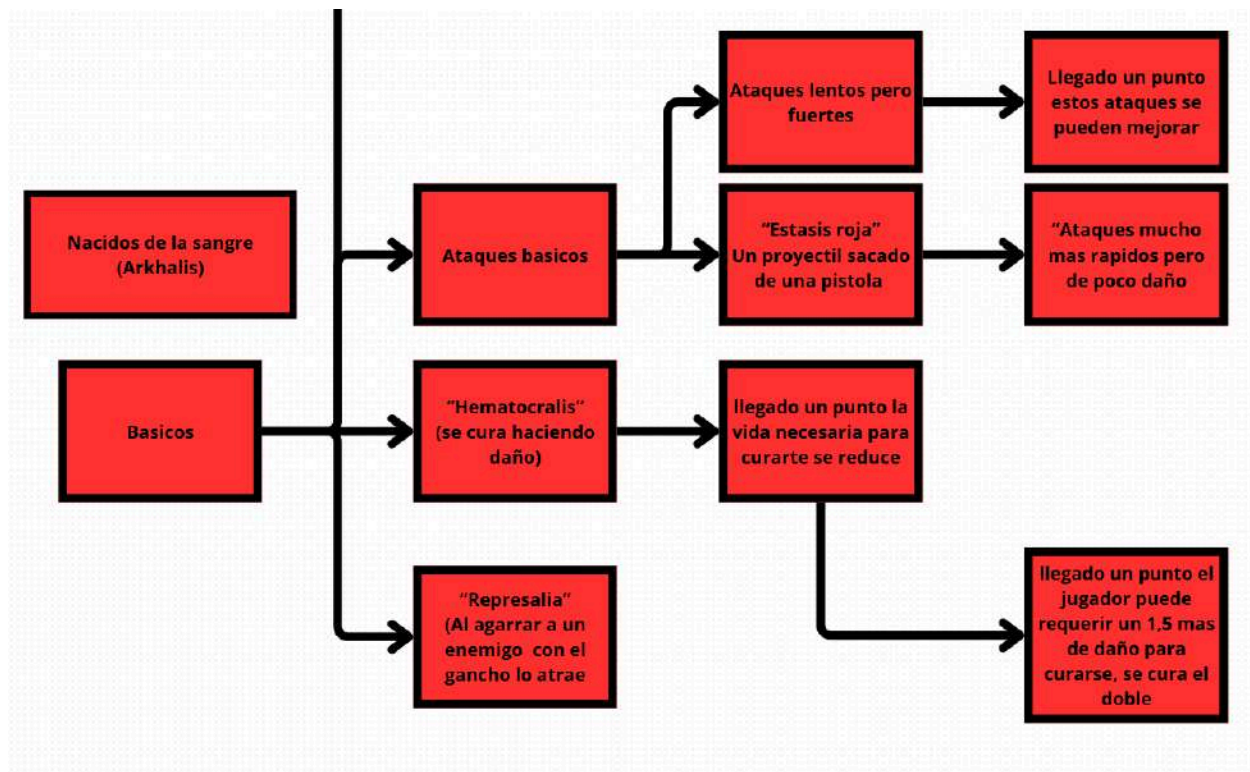

In the case of the mechanics, I work them by diagram, in order to show how they are combined or, in the case of the non-basic ones, in what order they are unlocked.

Basico

Arkhalis

From basic:

Description:

Arkhalis herself is very focused on being aggressive under the idea that she has a magical illness.

This consists of a self-sufficient blood which takes actions without its bearer being able to react, it can be easily controlled and tends to lead to faster regeneration of cells in the presence of magic or blood.

Coherence Note: Hematocrit is a rare magical illness which occurs due to excessive use in blood magic. Few magicians have the talent to have it because it would have to be used for months continuously.

On a mechanical level this is seen as an invisible meter which, when filled, heals the player for one point of life, this without visual aids to maintain that out of control effect but always being exact so it can be calculated with enough practice.

Ranged Weapon: The secondary weapon is a gun that uses incredibly simple arc magic and barely manages to do any damage, but allows you to hold or avoid certain attacks if used correctly, these can be used quickly but if abused you can lose damage.

As the game progresses, Arkhalis can be upgraded at specific points and do more damage, have more health, and even improve H.hematocralis. It is up to each player how they deal with this.

Hematocralis:

This allows the player to heal by doing a certain amount of damage along with requiring the player's risk to heal constantly. As the game progresses, the necessary amount of damage can decrease and at some point increase much more than necessary in exchange for healing twice as much.

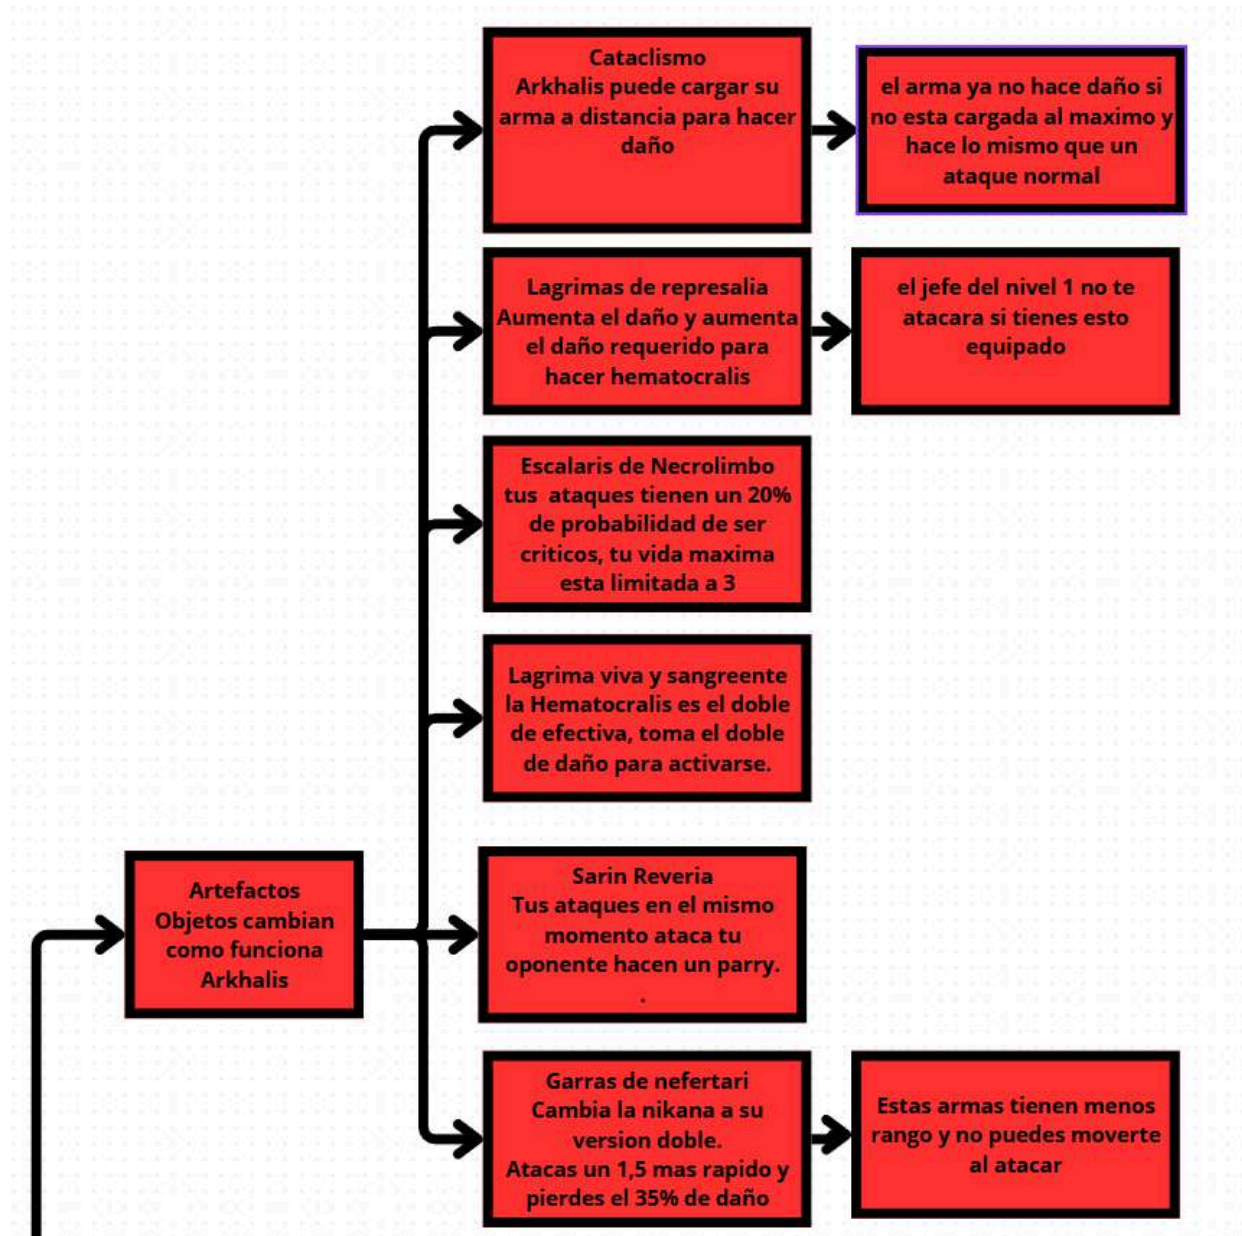

This happens whether the player wants it or not, and every time the player goes to heal it restarts.

Coherence Note: Hematocrit is a rare magical illness which occurs due to excessive use in blood magic. Few magicians have the talent to have it because it would have to be used for months continuously.

Reprisal:

At one point Arkalis will get a hook, she can use it to attract enemies close to her and attack more consistently.

Artifacts:

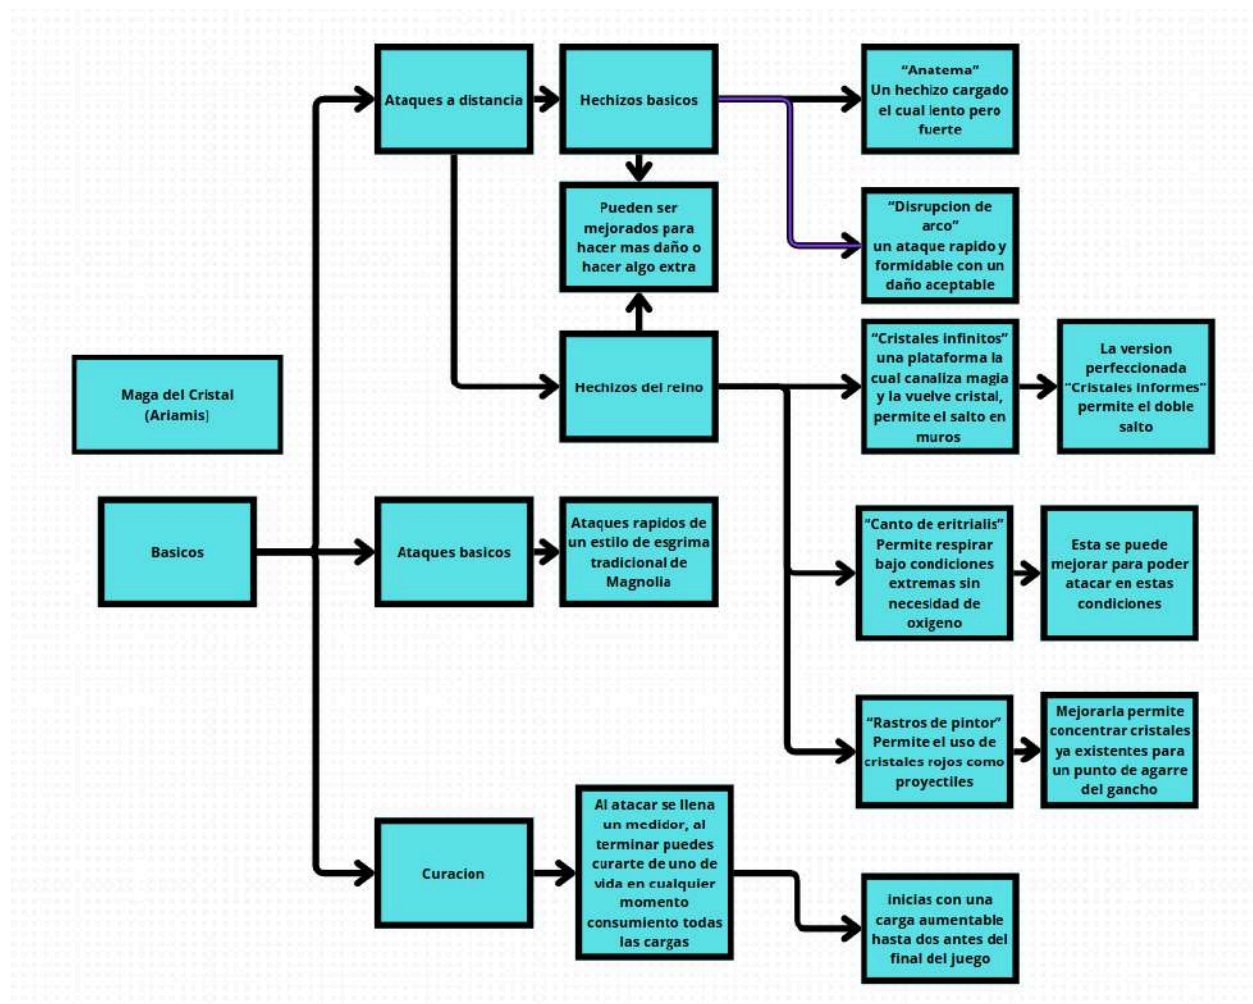

While developing the mechanics to a conceptual degree, I had a problem, said problem being that Ariamis had a lot more to offer than Arkhalis, so I added the Artifacts.

These change how Arkhalis works so it is preferable to read them directly from the Diagram.

Fix #1: An artifact is mentioned which allows the pistol to become a viable weapon, in which case it does not have the damage reduction.

Parry's mechanics: It is the possibility of returning an attack if it is done in a specific frame, so it is important to take into account its value and that only Arkalis can use this mechanic with the corresponding artifact equipped.

Ariamis

Description:

In the exceptional case of Ariamis, it works more calmly than its counterpart, so although it requires doing damage, it has a cure at will with a maximum of two, but at the same time, it is what allows you to advance in the game comfortably, with one side being the utility part and the other the offensive.

Her melee attacks are weak while her spells are varied and allow for a degree of dynamism, the latter being the reason why Arkhalsi received the Artifacts but Ariamis did not.

Its spells allow a wide variety of things, the utilities simply make the character appear on the screen for a moment to quickly do said spell.

Double jump and wall jump: the double jump is a consequence of the wall jump, in both cases Ariamis learns a spell to create glass platforms, in the case of walls it occupies a surface to create it and is strong enough to support the player, but when jumping it breaks.

The double jump is that, in the air, it creates a super fragile platform but enough to jump from it instantly.

At a certain point, they have to create solid platforms for the hook so Ariamis can collect red crystals to create points to hold the hook and access places.

In some areas the magic index will be denser so you will not be able to pass without a spell that allows you to attack and breathe in them, both of which are also part of Ariamis' kit.

The mechanics are explained exactly below:

Infinity Crystals:

A skill that can be used on walls and although its normal magical version is rare to see, it allows you to make solid platforms on walls to be able to make jumps from them. At a certain point this can be improved by allowing you to make them in the air, giving way to the double jump.

Canto de Eritrialis:

In the crystal kingdom, some areas have an enormous magical density. This song makes them more stable but not enough to use common magic. Its improved version allows it to be used without having to be used as a spell, allowing the player to attack in these conditions.

Painter's Trace:

a spell that, similar to the ranged quick attack, allows the use of crystals to attack but when improved can be charged by creating crystals in which the hook can be temporarily grabbed.

Cures:

Every time Ariamis attacks, a bar fills. When it fills up, the player can voluntarily heal himself. This starts with one charge and in the late game he can have two.

Complete scheme:

In case you want the complete mechanics diagram, here is the corresponding canvas, in the case of the basic image I made a more guided version but here you have the same content as that one with a couple of additions.

https://www.canva.com/design/DAGUie8xnF4/B88v-Q69B-qnaKpP9CSFNw/edit?utm_content=DAGUie8xnF4&utm_campaign=designshare&utm_medium=link2&utm_source=sharebutton

Art Department

In the art section is the most complex part of the project, the idea is that the characters have their own parts and the surrounding details denote parts of the story. At the time of the creation of this document, we only have the characters and some demonstrative images of the entrance to the first level.

All credits to the Artist who has helped in the project voluntarily.

Instagram: <https://www.instagram.com/afrosus/?hl=es>

This one was contacted by discord, so this is his: afrosus

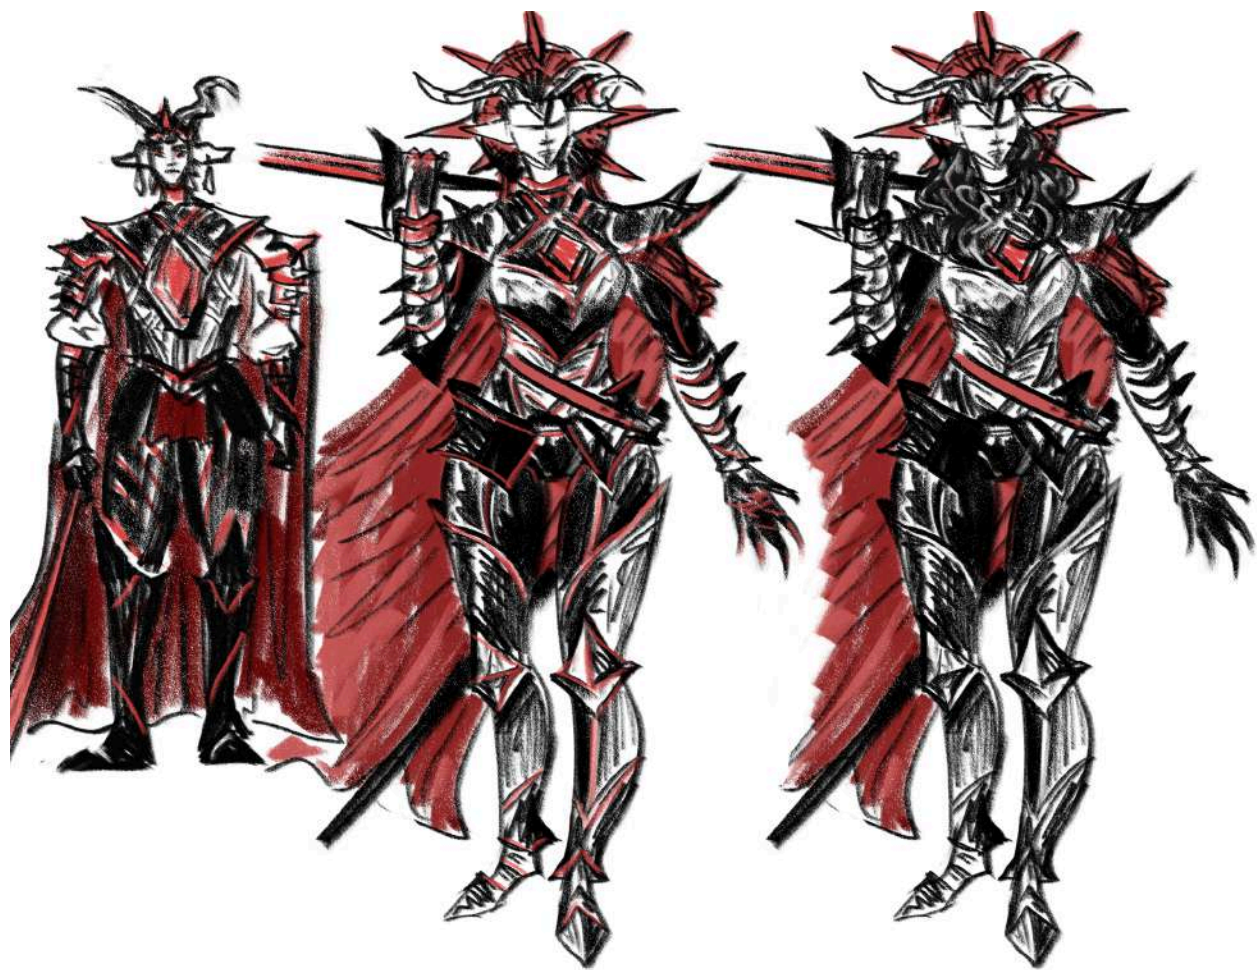

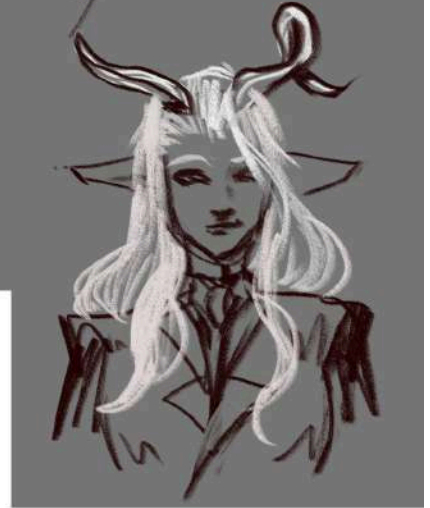

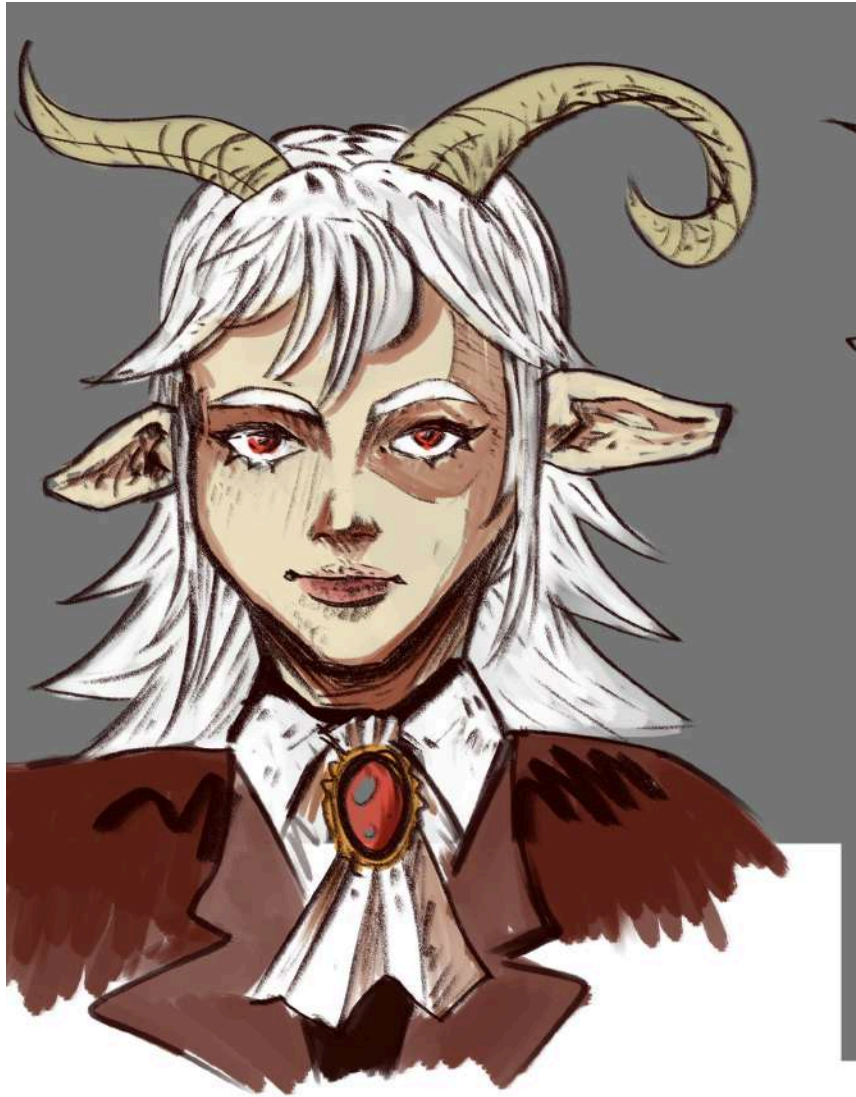

Character template

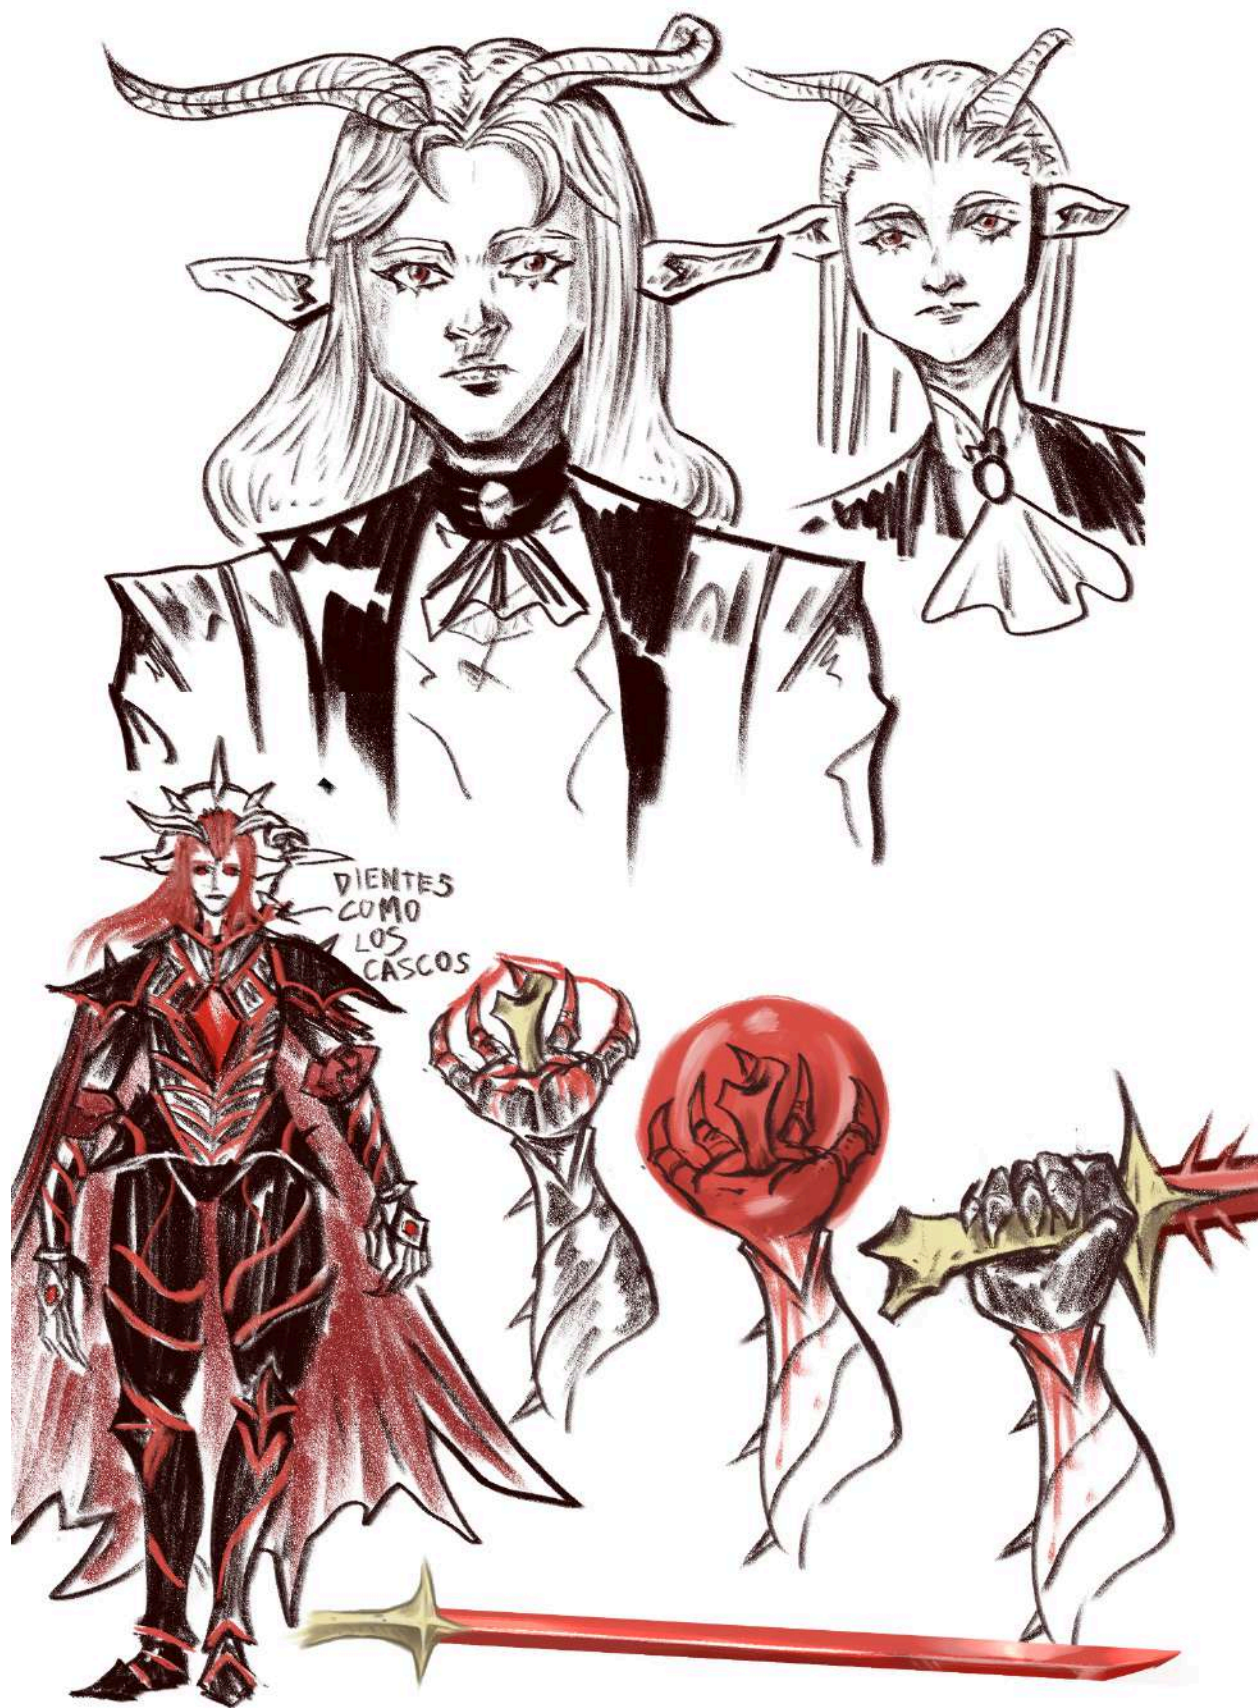

Arkhalis Emily Inkdeath Conceptos

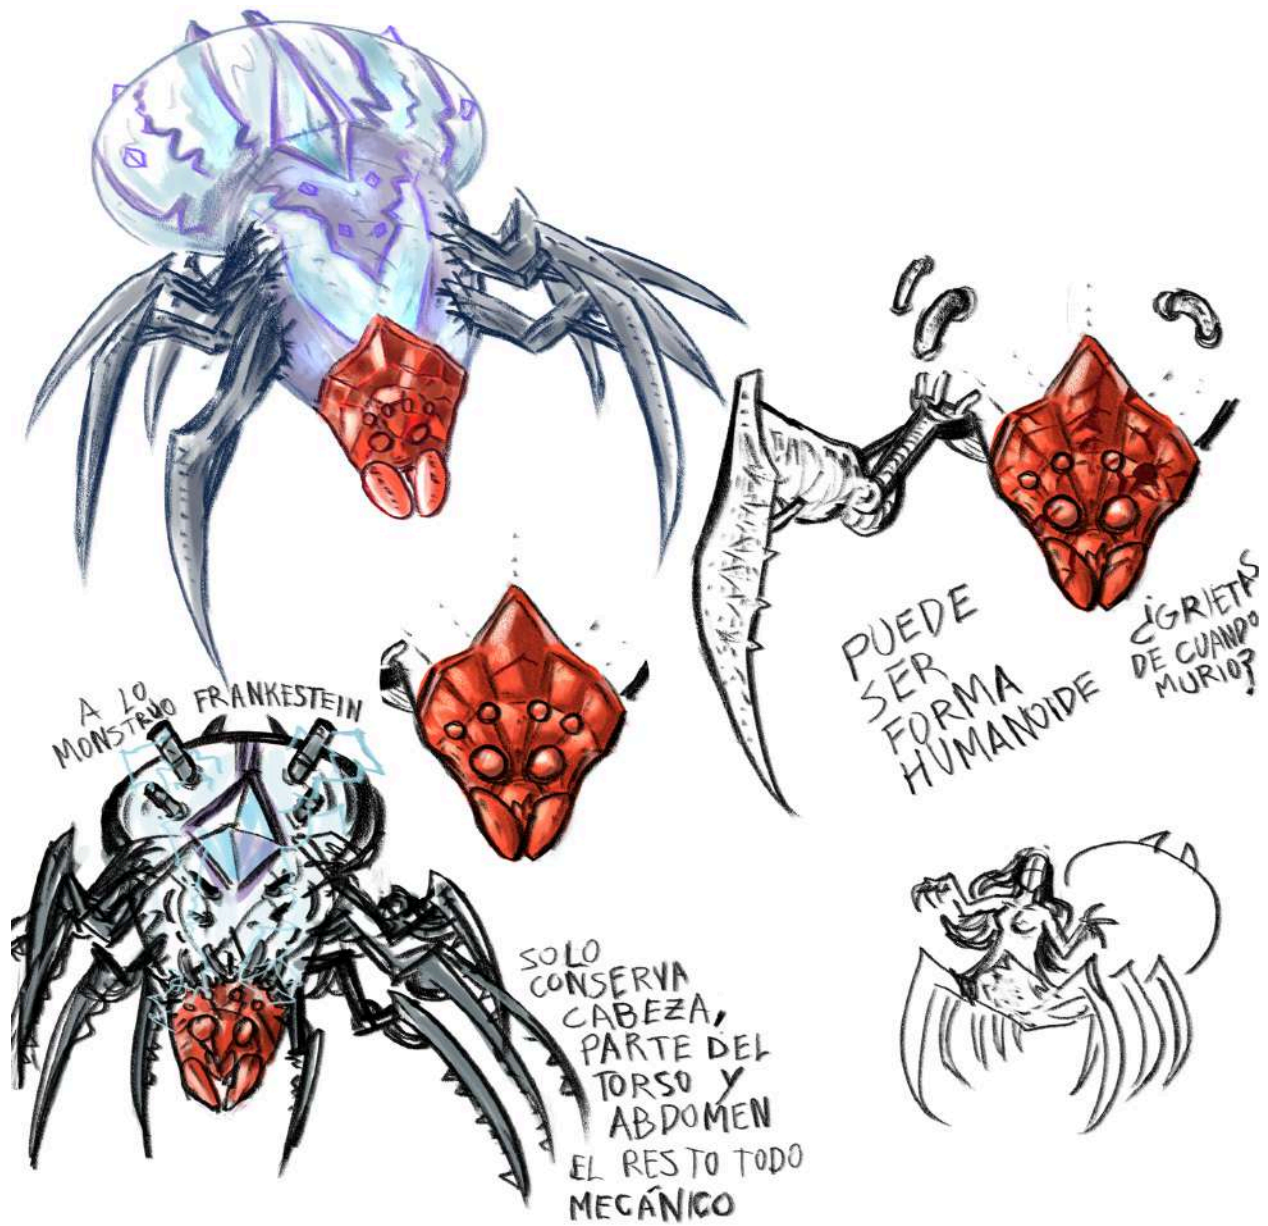

In-game Concepts (Arkhalis)

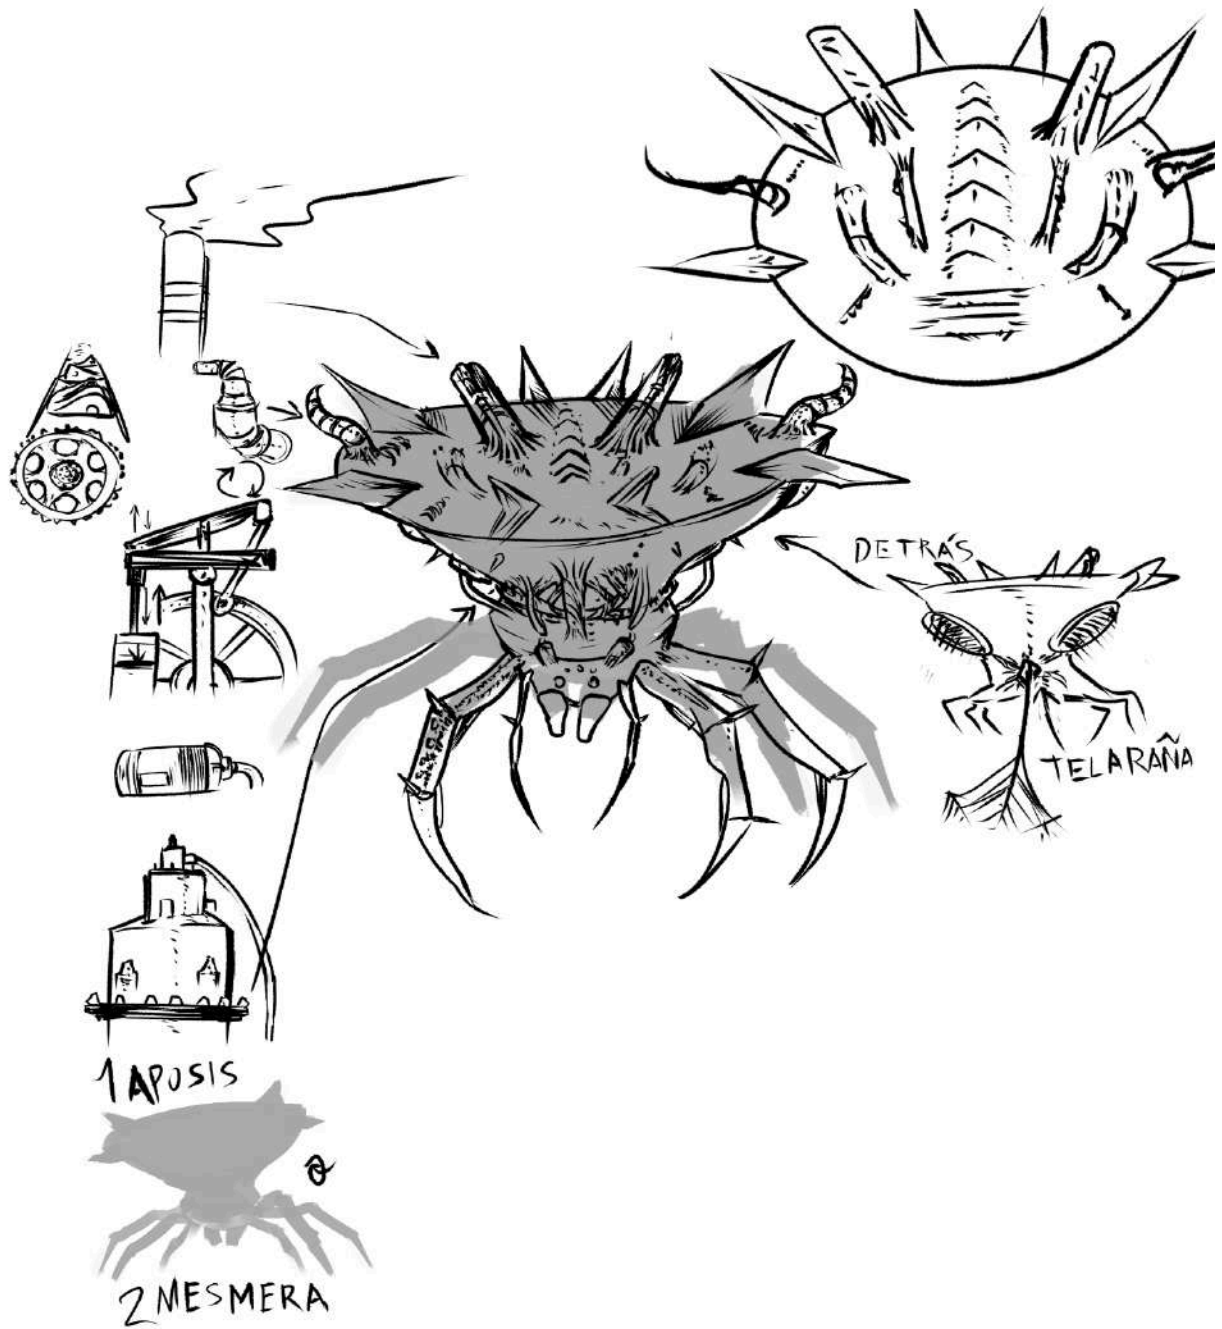

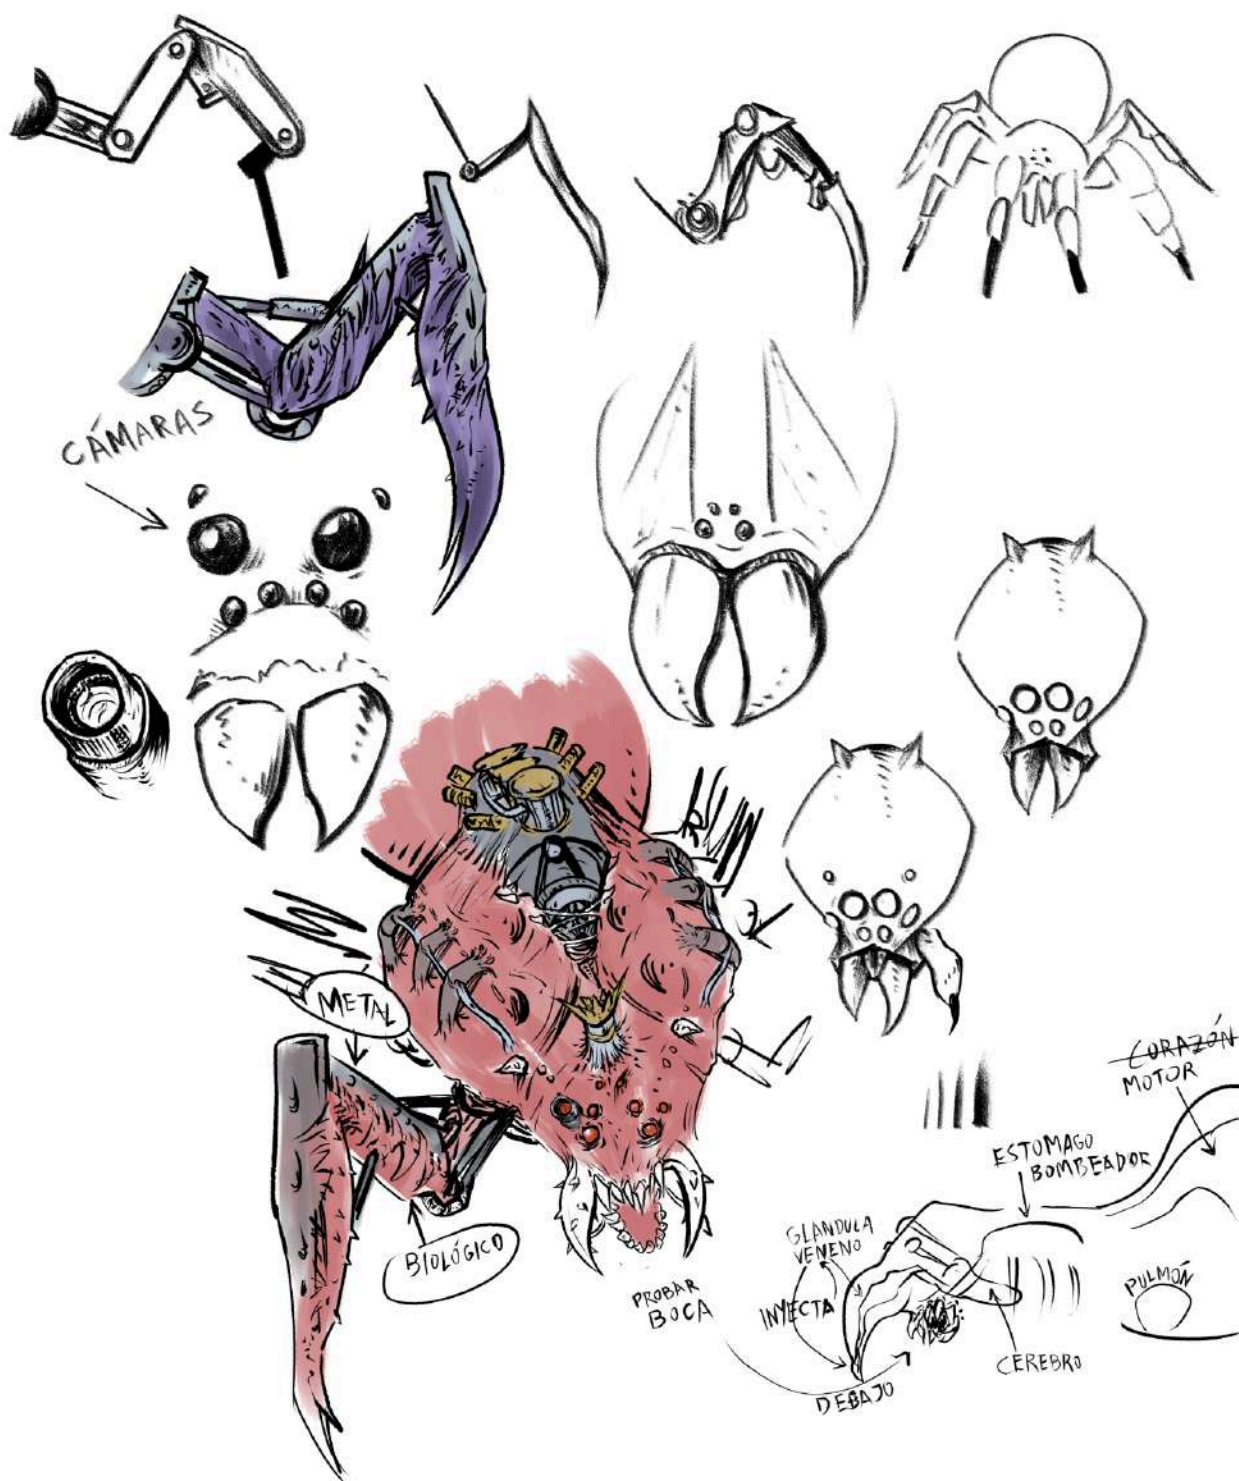

Attacks concept

Mobius spiders, concept #1

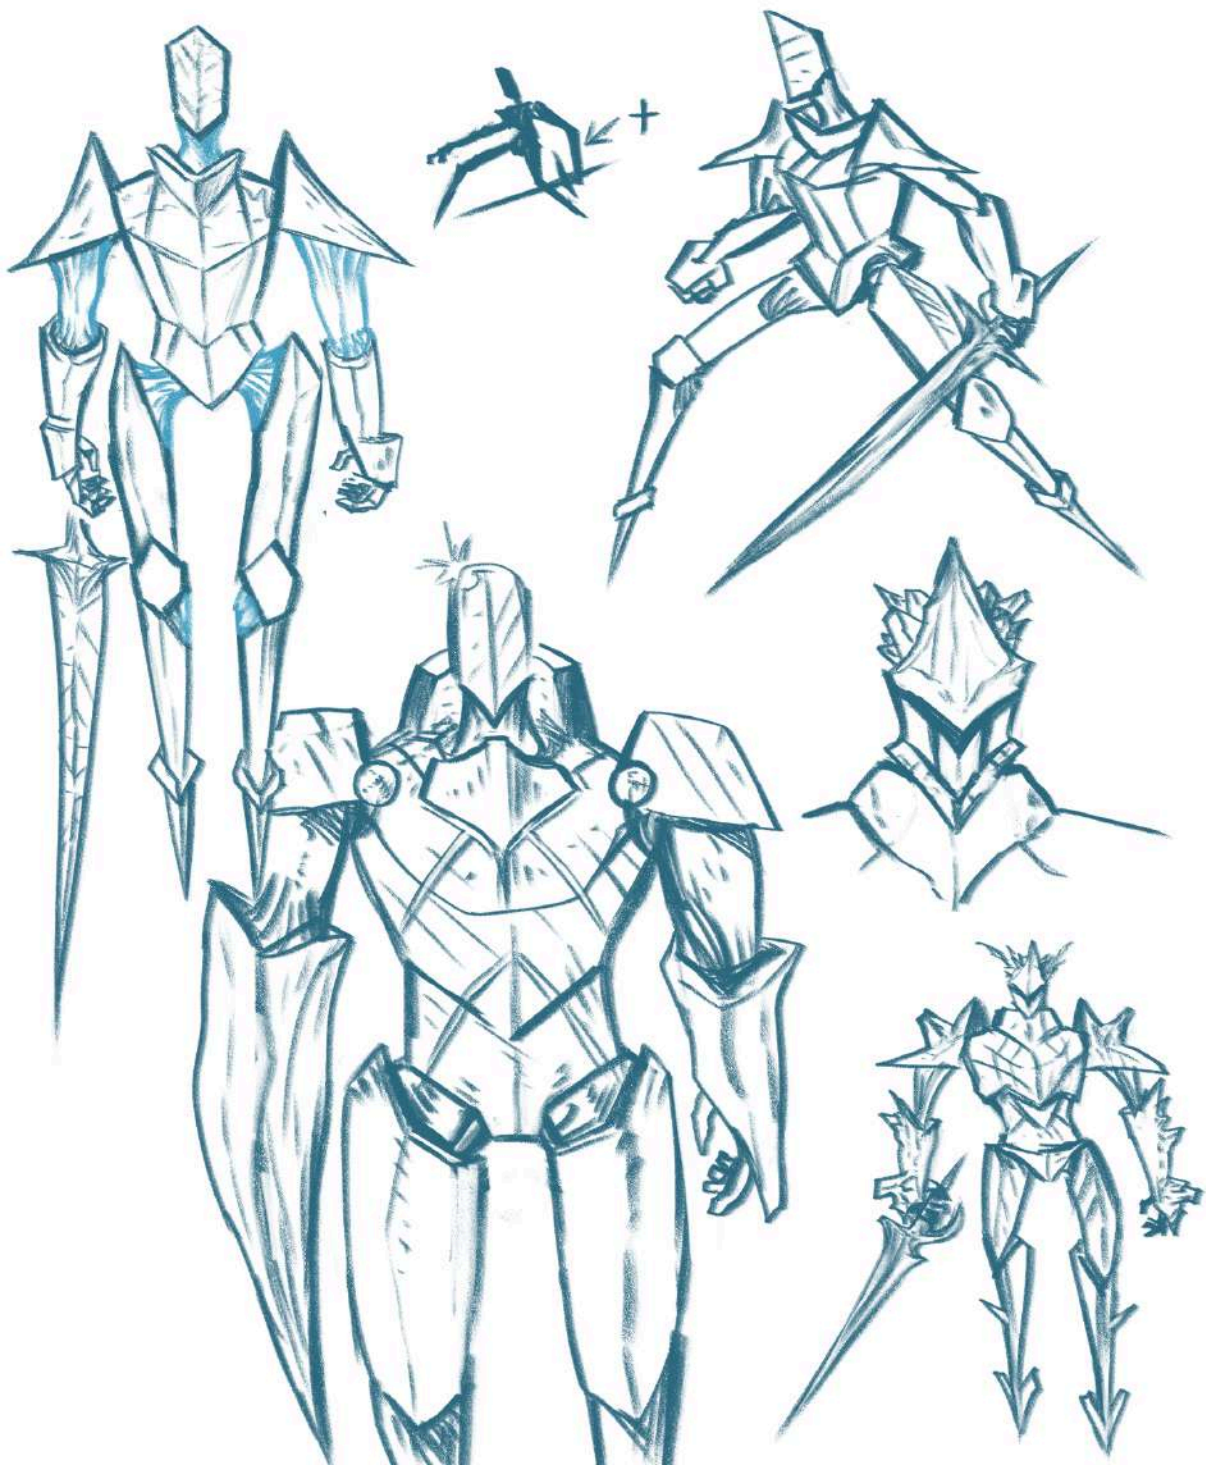

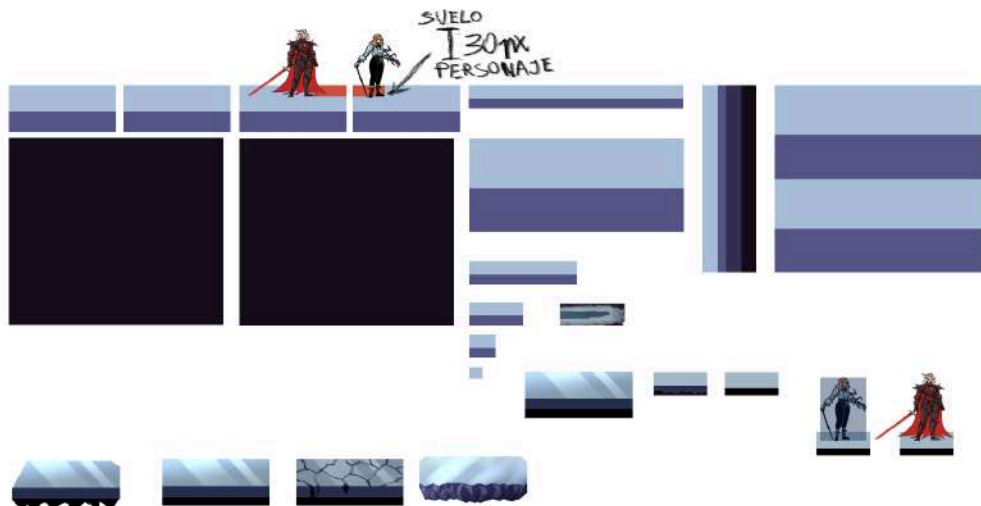

NPC concept

Enemy concept

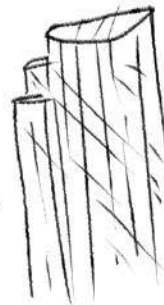

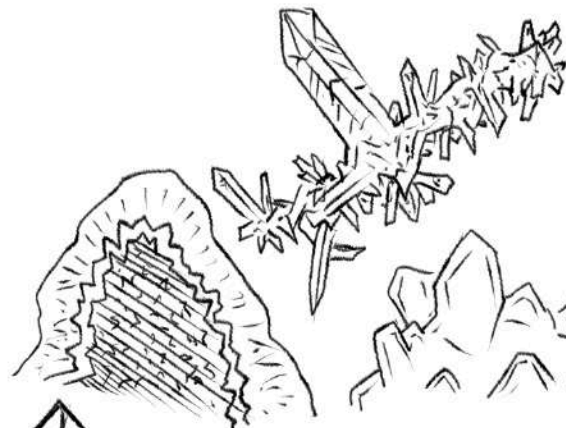

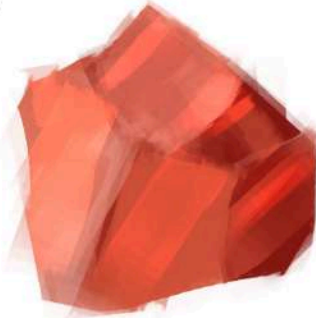

Asset Concept

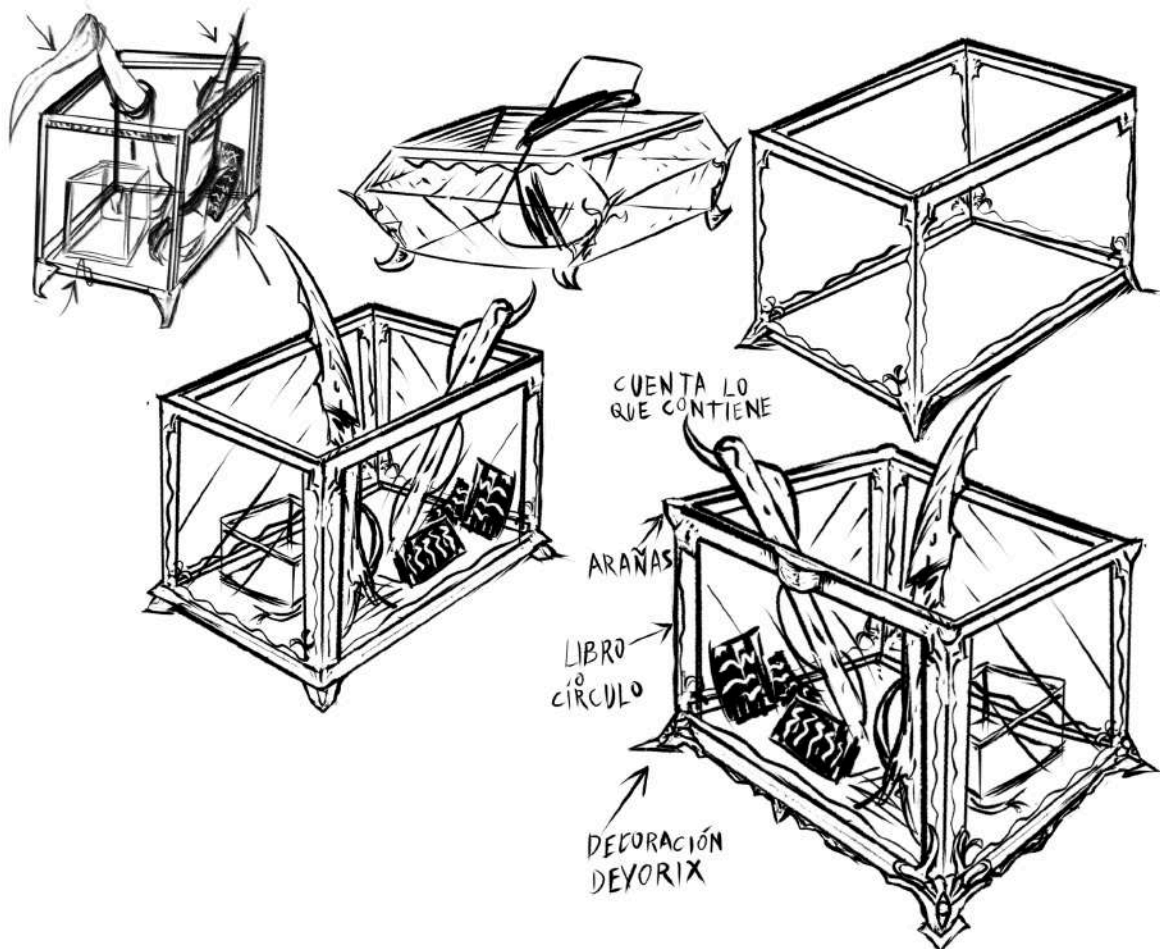

ASSETS

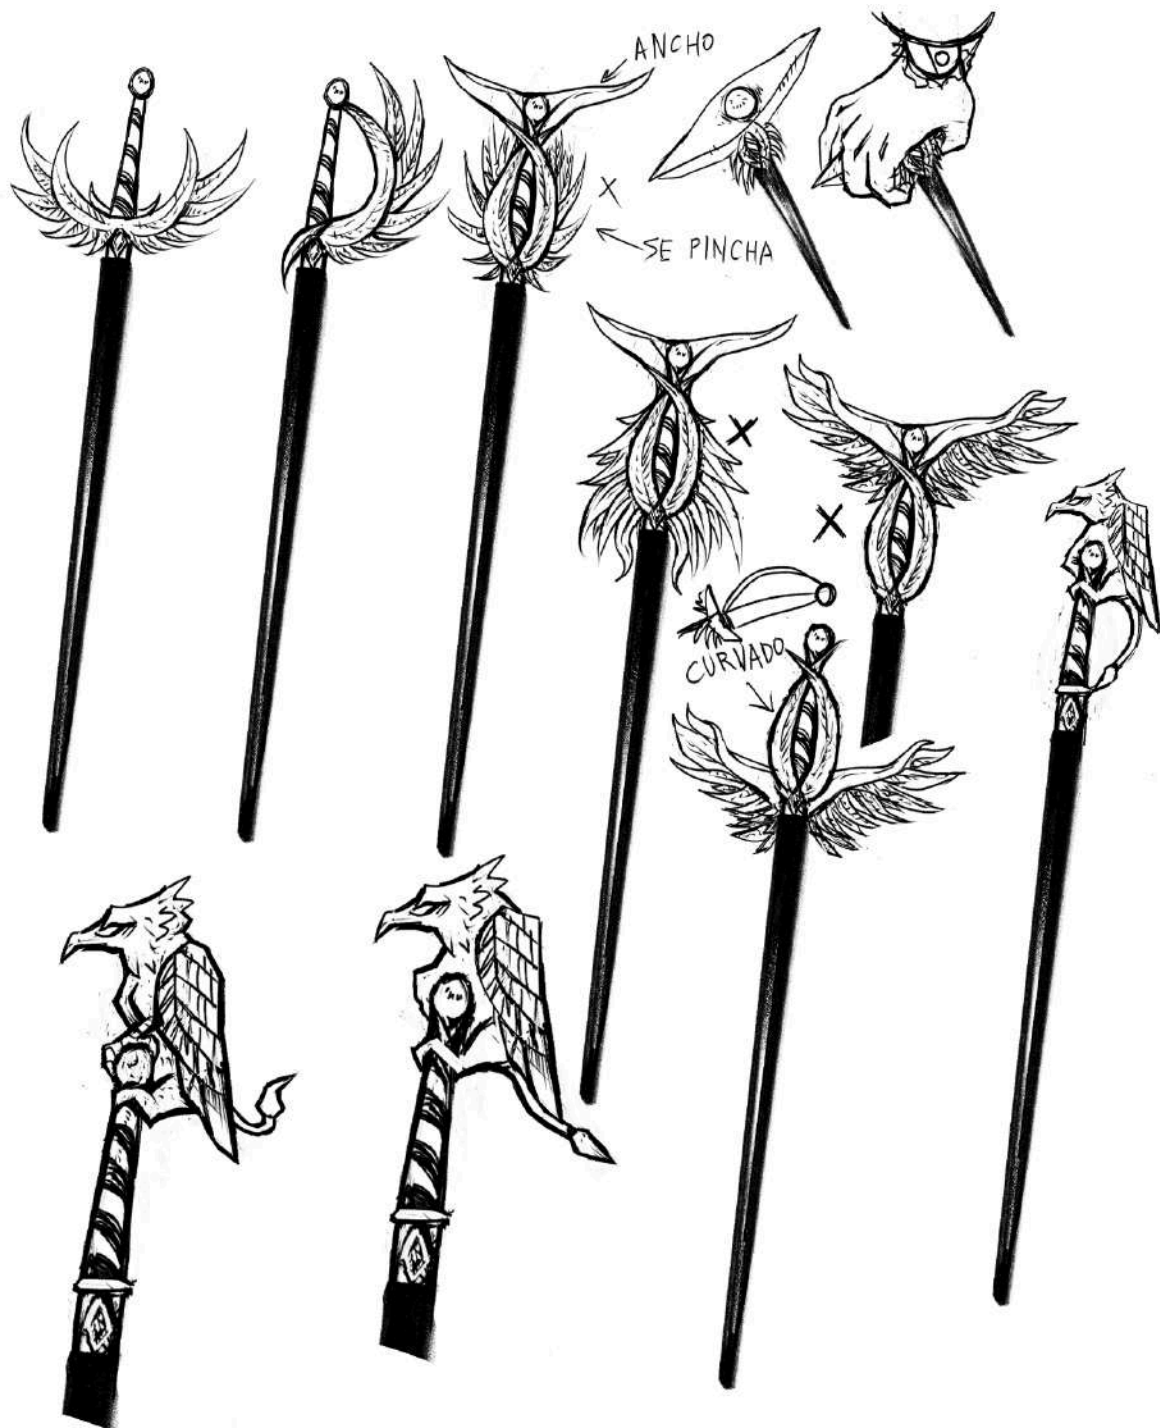

Dividir zonas por colores y formas

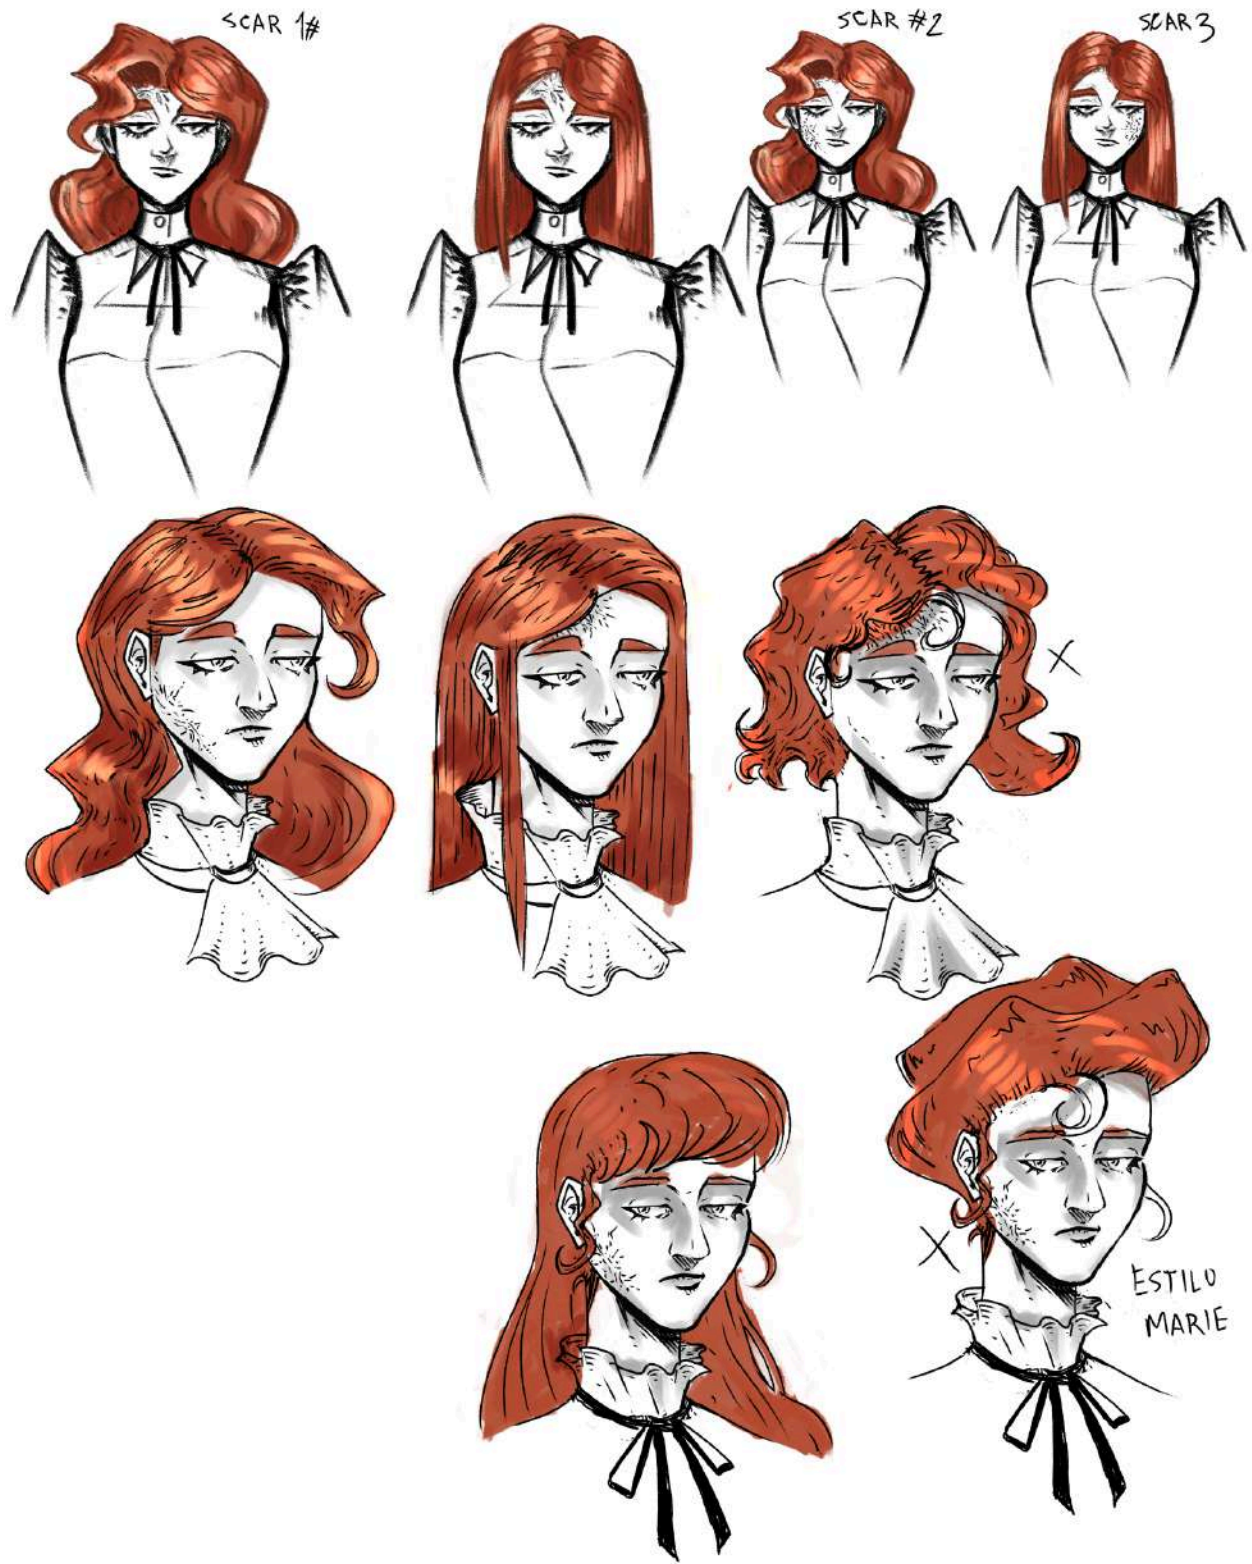

Remains of the Moebius prototypes

Crescent tears.

Eudora Ariamis

MUY
ELASTICO

In-game Concept (Ariamis)

Irelia Neeko Eos

About music

The music seeks to be, although somewhat beautiful and with a certain beautiful tone, also uncomfortable, trying to emphasize that “perfect” nature of the crystal kingdom along with giving a nostalgic tone in moments that seem like memories or illusions.

This added to the sound effects makes it really feel like the place you are in is a kingdom made of glass.

References:

Mili, Binary Haze Interactive: North

<https://open.spotify.com/intl-es/track/4ekM3t0FhI9NO2ahaXh6uW?si=558117ed8a5d443d>

Mili, Binary Haze Interactive: Bloom-Intro

<https://open.spotify.com/intl-es/track/4WlulKLDhf5r8yJc4LEcwj?si=c93fb15f047f4541>

Keiichi Okabe, From SINoALice: The book of lies and the universe

<https://open.spotify.com/intl-es/track/6ixeiqmPDm8HwtOXVJZS4c?si=01e4ed877b864cee>

Keiichi Okabe, From SINoALice: Truth and the universe

<https://open.spotify.com/intl-es/track/5bo0vIBs8Ej5nMd9tlbq7K?si=59a32e4fc2e8489a>

Hanz Zimmer, From Interstellar: Day one (Main Theme)

<https://open.spotify.com/intl-es/track/4WmB04GBqS4xPMYN9dHgBw?si=ec6e23a7fb324c28>

User interface

The idea behind the user interface is to provide only the strictly necessary information without the need to include maps

The menus must give the necessary information and allow the player while moving through the Zones to have the information they need and when pressing a key like “Esc” they are given a menu similar to the one in “Hollow knight” or “Ocarina of time” with the idea of centering everything and making it comfortable.

Use: I'm bad at interface design so I preferred to describe the idea I have.

Level design

The idea of the levels is to advance progressively until they are of high difficulty and in the case of the “Platforms” part of the genre, of high demand and precision along with depending on the ending the game requires more or less effort on the part of the player in order to invite them to explore more.

The levels are divided into sections, each section has a number of zones.

The idea is that for the demo there are the first three sections which introduce the mechanics, the first boss and the concepts of the game up to where the mid-game begins.

https://www.canva.com/design/DAGUFMo7ZYY/gFJk6cLp9tkbxmWnzcTjQ/edit?utm_content=DAGUFMo7ZYY&utm_campaign=designshare&utm_medium=link2&utm_source=sharebutton

For the final game it is expected to follow the following scheme, this is still in development:

Use: I'm linking it due to a technical problem, there are too many cells.

About Metroidvania

Metroidvania are a fairly old genre that for a long time remained in a niche, being the two fathers of the genre Metroid (1986) and Castlevania (1986) and popularized in recent times by the Metroidvania and dark fantasy video game, Hollow knight in 2017.

This consists of an environment which seeks to make the player explore an area, stay stuck in an area and look for improvements to be able to access new areas until reaching the end of the game.

These have their bases well founded in 2D and its introduction of 3D was best received in Metroid Prime in 2002.

This is most recognized and seen in dark fantasy and sci-fi worlds.

The references of this project are Ender Lilies: Quietus of the knights, Castlevania: Symphony of the night and Hollow knight.

For more References:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oe-SFW4dASY>

Planning

Due to time availability and lack of budget, times are considerably longer and require a larger space for absolutely everything.

A prototype is planned in the first month of development and a second for the mechanical section in a month and a half.

A demo in the first 5 months and the story finished for the sixth

The complete game in about a year.